UNDERSTANDING DANGEROUS NOISE LEVELS

Noise levels can be considered dangerous when they exceed 85dB (decibels). The examples below provide some practical examples of noise levels.
Activity = decibels involved = What period of time becomes dangerous having this exposure.

1. A whisper = 30dB = Not dangerous for any continuous period
2. Talking = 60dB = Not dangerous for any continuous period
3. Truck/Heavy Traffic = 80dB = around 8 hours of continuous exposure
4. A hairdryer = 90dB = around 2 hours of continuous exposure
5. A helicopter = 100dB = around 15 minutes of continuous exposure
6. An angle grinder = 110dB = around 2 minutes of continuous exposure

This demonstrates how quickly continuous exposure can damage your hearing in the future.
